Introduction

Congratulations! As a graduate of RISD, you can be proud of your accomplishments, and confident of your future. As an alumnus/æ of the college, you are joining a grand tradition of over 125 years of creative people who have made significant contributions to the world. Whether you pursue a career directly related to your major, or you migrate to new opportunities, your education will stand you in good stead. You have learned to solve problems creatively, and are inspired by challenges that others would find unsolveable. You respect the cultures of the world and are endlessly curious about them–you think globally.

You have an abiding love of nature, and appreciate the need to protect it. You are a sensitive person–you love good food, great music, a fascinating walk in a new place, and love the "shock of the new." Your willingness to seek alternatives to the expected will never change, although you will need to channel this energy toward making a difference in the world.

As you look back on your life years from now, I hope you will remember your RISD experience as life-changing in so many ways. Your teachers, who have been your colleagues in learning, wish you well. They want you to keep in touch with them so they can cheer your successes and help you to continue to grow.

In whatever city or town you locate, your alumni await the opportunity to be helpful to you–as mentors, advisors and friends. RISD now boasts 33 chapters of our alumni association, each with programs that can connect you to their part of the world. And our Alumni and Career Services Office will also help you launch your career if asked.

So keep in touch! Be optimistic that the world that awaits you can use your talent and skill for its betterment. May you have the grace, guile and good fortune that accompanies RISD everywhere!

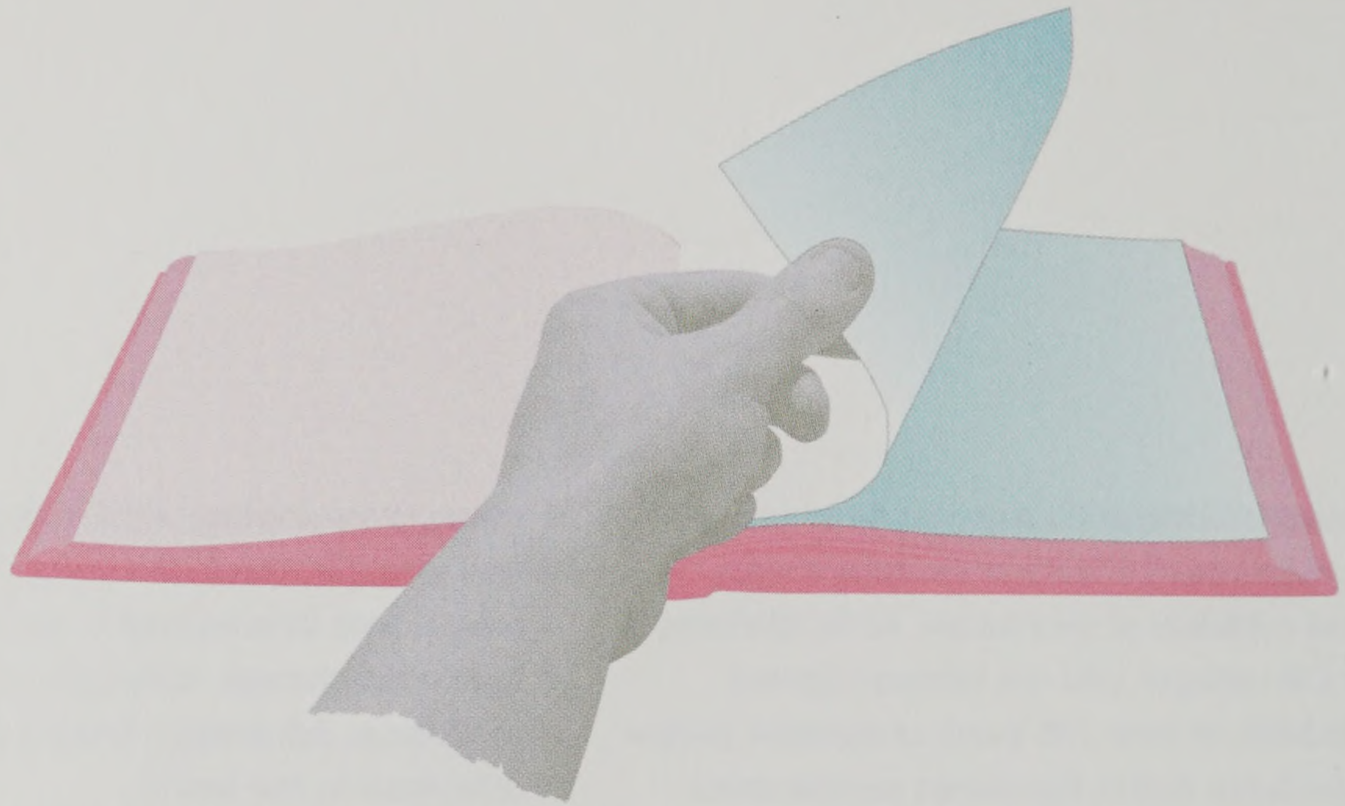
How To Use This Book



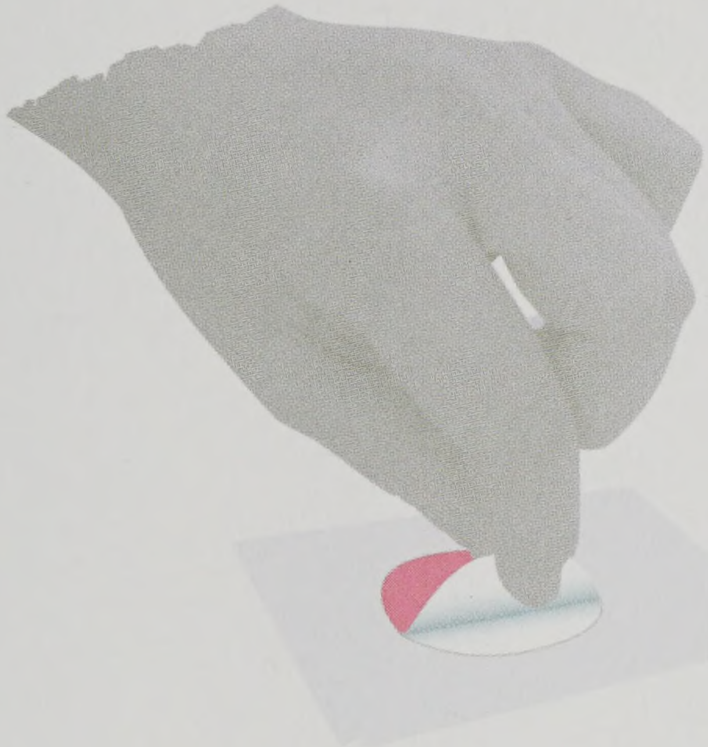
G — Graduate

♥ — Loves

5 — Fifth year

★ — Hired

USE YOUR HEAD. And your friends' heads. Put them anywhere you want. Remember things exactly as they were, then rearrange the details and reconstruct the memories.



STICK TOGETHER. Put a face on the place. Be honest; tell it like it should have been. Remember, things change – you're not stuck with yesterday's sentiments.

REPEAT. Relive your past glories, recover faded instances from the clutches of age. Don't stop – it's time now to rock harder, rock faster, rock louder, rock on.

Afterword

I often invite guests to my classes. My neighbor at Mount Hope and recent visitor Henry Abramowitz became a new American as a displaced person in 1949. Henry has a number tattooed on his arm. He was branded at Auschwitz, an early, low number. "Such numbers are rare," he declares. Few survivors could endure the conditions in the slave labor and murder factories. "I was tough, and also good-natured," he told the class. He chose a student and asked him to call out the digits and ciphers on his forearm. "They add up to a symbol in Hebrew that spells 'life' according to a dying rabbi from Cracow." Henry goes back to his pre-war past, his years among the camps, and his early days in Providence.

"My mother died when I was three. We lived in one room, from kitchen to sleeping spaces on the floor round the stove. When I turned twelve, my father apprenticed me to a tailor. I knew to bring home a stick of wood for the stove or a crust of bread for the table. We often went to sleep with no supper at all."

Henry got through his ordeals by instinct. Once, he was stripped and shoved toward the gas chamber. "I punched the guard in the face. He fell. I slipped into the room with clothing, pulled on a shirt and trouser, and ran to the right, to the light, to work." He lost a hundred relatives but came out strong and whole. He met his wife in a D.P. camp in Munich. She had been hidden by a Polish-German farmer. She slept with the pigs. After their marriage, their child was stillborn. They moved to Providence, speaking no English at all. Henry had his skill with a needle. "I got a job right away and stayed for 32 years, because of my European training. My wife set stones in a jewelry plant until she retired. We were married for 56 years. I lost her last month." My students were impressed by his lively, sparkling personality, his little jokes that add irony and relief, the vitality welling up from his inner resources.

I drove him home after the class. His house is neat, small, with large mirrors making the most of the space and the windows, giving evidence that you exist. He loaned me a book of drawings done by an inmate after liberation, one titled "The Messiah is a G.I." He showed me a photo in a book of victims hanged by the S.S. "They almost did that to me," he added. What did Henry learn from all this? "American young people have it easy. They don't know what it was like in Europe. My wife was an excellent cook. She brought crowds of people home for Thanksgiving. But from the war she developed back problems, and later her memory failed. If a friend came by to visit, it lifted her spirits. Real com-rades are better than creature comforts." Seeing Henry in the mirror of my car, in the RISD context of my office and studio fixed his words.

"I have faith in the miracles. That rabbi from Cracow who read my fortune in my tattoo, he was an angel from above." Maybe Henry too is an angel with a message that suits our 125th anniversary, which includes the influence of the students and faculty who had been G.I.s. No matter what is taken away, you have the work of your hands, the prayer of your heart, the love of those closest to you, and the generosity of spirit you give to the community at your front porch. You read these things in Henry's sad eyes and smile. Take his smile as a simile to sticker over your own smile of understanding, as a positive legacy from an era that mixed sacrifice with triumph.

This fun yearbook was designed and illuminated collectively by Adriana Deléo Stubbe, Wyeth Hansen, Joe Marianek, Ryan Waller and Lily Williams. The typefaces used are Malmo-Sans by Martin Fredrikson Core, and Lubalin Graph by Herb Lubalin. The book was typeset in Adobe Indesign. The paper used is Mohawk Superfine, and super-special sticker paper. Printing and binding was done by Reynolds DeWalt Printing Inc. Special thanks to Blair De St Croix & OSL, Jerry Coholan, Shay Platz, Silas Munro and Kathleen Giblin.
