We Made This for You

To the Class of 2008,

This yearbook comes in three parts: the one you are reading now, an included set of sticker sheets, and a pair of scissors that you will receive as part of the commencement ceremonies. You can use these scissors to cut out the stickers. The clothing poses are loosely based on the dotted lines in the background of your photos, but many of you break that mold. So, feel free to cut, alter, or combine the stickers however you like and apply them to you and your classmates.

Enjoy!

Thoughts on Passing of Time

Roger Mandle

Two three or four years seems a terribly long time to spend in one place in advance of arriving. Now that this period of your life is over as a RISD student, it must seem like a mere blink of the eye. Where did this time go? How will it compare to similar times in one's life? What did one do with all this time? What has been the effect of these experiences?

I am asking myself the very same questions as I begin to pack up to leave RISD—after fifteen years. I am “graduating” with your class, a significant honor! This has been one of the most significant times in my life—indeed in my family's lives. My wife, Gayle, is now a RISD alumna, having spent two glorious intense years as a graduate student in painting. We're so grateful for our time at this great school, and have gained so much from everyone here.

I measured my time at RISD not by the “things” accomplished, but by the people with whom we've met, interacted and learned from. I am sure you have as well; you probably already suspect that the friends you've made at RISD will be your friends for life. Many of your associations at RISD will indeed last a lifetime. I know this because the alumni of RISD that I have met around the world have said over and over that among their closest friends are RISD people. In moving to new places, it is the RISD people who've made the greatest effort to welcome them, to help and to collaborate with them. There are “nests” of RISD alumni in every major city around the world. I have interacted with many of these thirty-nine RISD Alumni Chapters, who readily extend themselves to their RISD family.

The RISD community is rich, vast and important—not just to you, but to the world of art and design. It has had an impact in other ways as well. Many people graduating from RISD will enter fields far from their major, including non-art professions. They will bring their special ways of solving problems and “out of the box” thinking to urban, medical, political, commercial and personal issues of importance. As will you, they are making a difference in the world through their own creativity.

We may part company following graduation, but you can count on so many aspects of RISD to continue as a resource for you. Whether it is the alumni, the faculty, the museum curators, the trustees, the parents’ organization, or just friends you’ve gained along the way—they’re there for you. And they’re there for me, I know.

I love RISD as I know you do, and will keep the memories of great and small occasions with me. These memories possess an intense sacred value for me.

Congratulations! You’re becoming part of a great treasure-trove of RISD colleagues out there changing the world—have at it! I hope that we’ll have a chance to see each other again soon!

Best wishes for your success!

Roger Mandle

Your yearbook lasts longer than a styrofoam cup. The years pull away from its images and turn it into some kind of antique. The big word this season is "change." It rhymes with "rich and strange." The new building is going up. The hopes for a quick and fancy job are going down. Maybe it's a fine moment to muse on the things that are slow to change, which stay behind and keep us company. Perhaps you might, before leaving town, stop by the sunken garden underneath our lofty museum. There's a tree like a sketch in a book of fairytales. A fountain spouts water to refresh and inspire the poet in you. In an alcove a small Pan, rather shy and child-like, holds his pipes in an idle pose. From a stone bench you may contemplate the upright Muses that guard your privacy and befriend your solitude. Urns hold ferns to cool your brow...Upstairs and indoors, dwell wondrous things under a spell. An old wooden Buddha and an ancient broken timber Jesus hold court in different chambers. Many old favorites among the paintings have moved about as that new building has jostled the still enchantment of Pendleton House. Santa and Roger Williams, the Western Wall in Jerusalem and other all time treasures of spirit and familiar image may hide on you, unlike the faithful tree in the lower oasis. Your school, of which you are now and forever alums, started out as a lighthouse for lost souls, all hands (pun intended) on deck. You could carve out a place in the sun with an educated hand. The finest traditions of the School of Design were built, like the mills and factories of Providence, Rhode Island, by and for industry. The tools were very real, tangible things.

In a globalized world those ideals of craftsmanship have shifted, maybe drifted, into other goals. But beneath your sojourn here that tradition endures. You brought it with you. We faculty are so lucky! You teach us and leave your lessons behind. Mostly, you learn what you already knew. Your fellow alums have been your best models. Providence brought you here. You take Providence with you in your old kit bag. Like the golden leaves from that tree in the sunken garden, you carry the bright sunbeams of your time here like our blessings. A RISD education is a quiet and still prayer in an era of noise, restlessness, and uncertainty. The road from here with all its twists and turns is a stairway to the stars, an upward-bound pathway. Whatever the stock market does, you levitate and rise above and beyond in the search for beauty more than bounty, truth more than trade, the river's journey in the bark of your art.

John Maeda

Dear Class of 2008,

You are the class that I “almost knew”—and are a class that is special in my heart as I’ve met many of you through my various on-campus appearances. The world is in flux today due to advances in technology over the past two decades that have rendered many of our traditions of art and design a bit haywire.

For instance, today we live in an era when Adobe Photoshop CS3 looks a lot like CS2 and CS1. Eerie isn’t it? One would think that a version upgrade would mean we are stepping forward. Look closely Class of 2008—we are currently at a standstill in the world of expression. And what is required are people like yourselves that are uniquely trained in the traditions of art and design with a liberal arts core. I urge you to *wonder* through your work, and to wonder out loud in your conversations with friends and colleagues.

Where is *our* world heading? Where is *your* world heading? Think, then do. Talk, and do. The world is listening and waiting for you.

Since the December 21, 2007 announcement that I would become the 16th president of RISD I've become increasingly aware of the stature of the RISD name in the world. It seems that everybody I know has a relative that "went to RISD"—so now with all you graduates headed out there, I know the probability of a RISD-connection has just increased dramatically! Please spread the word that RISD is always looking for talented young creatives that can be propelled forward with the power of a RISD education.

In the coming years I hope you will engage in alumni activities as part of being a lifelong RISDoid. I will be on the road a great deal and look forward to seeing what kind of successful practices realized and dreams you will be fulfilling. Meanwhile here on RISD campus, the biggest question that I am often asked is what will become of "The Jolly Roger"? Given President Mandle's incredible new journey into the Middle East after RISD, I am certain that your Roger will always and forever remain Jolly!

Sincerely,
John Maeda
RISD President-Elect
