We, the governing force of the United States, will extend the frontiers of American freedom which is the freedom of commerce and protect those frontiers with all our power with tactical nuclear bombs and strategic nuclear bombs and total destruction horrors of all chemical and biological organisms inimical to all human life and we will spill the blood of our young and of citizens of any other country that has any other idea of freedom. We will annihilate them in order to bring them within the frontiers of American freedom which is the freedom of commerce, which is the kingdom of total death.

We, the governing forces of the United States, will farm our forests and use the trees for packages that contain packages that contain odd things that do not have to be packaged. We will use the trees for newspapers and magazines that fight the truth with every device of libel and untruth developed through all the centuries of human misery and we will let the forest land erode and the deer drop of starvation. We will hunt the puma and the wolf and every bird until those pests are gone and nothing is left but a great void on the face of the earth.

We, the governing forces of the United States, will impose unjust laws and chaotic order on all the citizens we hate, those with black skin, those with bronze-skin, those American Indians whom we have not yet destroyed and everyone who looks jewish, all with hair on their faces, all with long hairs growing out of their heads, all artists and poets, and all musicians and honest scientists, all women who are proud and happy with their naturally beautiful hair and bodies. We will cut and shave and tear out their hair and condemn them to endless oppression and allow only one style of life.

PAINTERS

by Joe Cipro

On Monday morning, October 19, 1969, Robert Steiner and I moved our painting equipment into unoccupied rooms behind the snack bar to demonstrate our need as junior painters for adequate school studio space. We were joined by Abby Rorer, Kristen Johnson, and Jo Ann Wojtech. We have continued to paint in these empty rooms under much duress as we wish to make it evident to students, faculty and administration that our need is immediate and it is urgent that our demands be recognized.

During the last three weeks Kristen Johnson and Day Gleeson have conferred with Mr. Peers concerning the possibility of keeping the College Building opened longer hours to utilize the studio space now available and to voice concern over the evident lack of space in proportion to the number of the junior painters. They were then referred to and spoke with Mr. Hamilton, Dean Lay, Mr. Richardson, Mr. Ashcraft, buildings and grounds, Mr. Belhumeur and graduate painting students in an effort to locate adequate painting space. After having exhausted administrative possibilities and ultimately being referred back to Mr. Peers and the painting department, it became apparent the consensus of all these discussions was that they could accomplish nothing for the junior painting department without the voiced support of the junior painters.
