Here is Your Yearbook

WE HAVE TRIED TO GIVE YOU a book that captures, in single moments, the whimsical dynamicism of life at the Rhode Island School of Design. By collecting the most ordinary objects from our everyday at RISD, it becomes apparent that the day-to-day life around campus is actually quite extraordinary. In a place saturated with creativity and dedication, we thought it best to document the school from an objective perspective, and allow the people, places and things to offer the best explanation.

The spirit of the Risod

adapted from the 1914 School publication, the Risod

THE READER OF THIS PUBLICATION will find much of interest, both humorous and serious, artistic and in the spirit of caricature. There will be the personal interest in the individual members of the student body, and in addition that in the varied activities, social and artistic, which characterize the work of the year.

But through it all there runs another interest: an underlying spirit of loyalty to the School of Design and its teachers, and appreciation of what both are doing to develop talent and to offer encouragement. Such publications as the present one breathe the spirit of youth, of gentle satire, and of kindly humor.

A book of this nature means to the students a remembrance of pleasant hours and of many friends. For the general public it recalls their own pleasant schooldays and increases their interest in the present student body. To the institution it is the expression of those who realize the opportunities presented to them through its work. Especially to those responsible for the existence and present honored position of the School it means a feeling of pride that every year so many students of talent are seeking instruction in its halls.

There is an old story about the early days of the Plymouth Colony, and of a certain worthy Puritan who was brought to trial before the town fathers, charged with reckless expenditure of public funds. His crime consisted in constructing a highway in a westerly direction for a distance of some twenty-five miles into what was then the wilderness. The Puritan town fathers could not see how the settlement could ever grow to such an extent as to call for the use of this road throughout its length. To-day the road, much extended and far from straight, runs west to the Pacific Ocean.

Therefore, kind reader, peruse these pages with care and appreciation for those responsible for the present book may some day be famous as artists, architects, designers, teachers, or craftsmen. With care, I repeat, so that due regard may be given for the effort expended, and with appreciation of the whole-souled attempt of the student body to make the Risod for 1914 worthy of the School.

The spirit of the tavern

a note to the senior class from Mike Fink, Professor of English

AS YOU FINISH YOUR four (or five) years at RISD, I complete my fifty. My golden. In front of the College Building, corner Benefit and College Streets, the date inscribed in cement reads "1936." But at the Main Street entrance the date of the building carved in a block of granite claims "1823." Whew! And I think the school was a tavern too, into the bargain. I wonder if they planned to dump the tea and craft a new culture among these very spaces. Art and design mean so many different things to so many diverse people. Some folks define America, or the U.S.A., as a corporate civilization.

From a RISD perspective, that's not how I see us. I look at our arts and designs to discern our true values. My heroes, heroines, and models come from the funnies and the movies and the old pop songs. Betty Boop and Fred Astaire, Popeye and Olive Oyl, Harold and Maude and South Park. The Coke bottle of Raymond Loewy and the Nash Rambler (the smallest coupe-sedan from the year of my arrival at RISD), things sketched and caught on camera, tunes danced to and chairs sat in. Stars from Scarlet O'Hara to Scarlett Johansson. The sweet and sad ballads you can still hear and think deep thoughts about at a piano bar, some of 'em performed at our commencements and convocations by Debra Mann, wife of Don Morton, our genie of Media Resources. Or the cruder but comical lyrics (!) to the Hip-Hop and Rap closer to now-a-days, and the blunt love-advice from Dan Savage. Garbo and Dietrich, Judy Garland and Mickey Rooney as seen in black and white in the film classes I have taught for decades in CB412. The culture of the nation was worked out right here among our campus cobblestones in Colonial and Revolutionary times, in the youth of our country and city and campus, and all our arts and designs cut a major figure into your own years of the 21st century. Even Hollywood has moved to town.

You yourselves shape and form RISD with your pens and paint-brushes, your tools and your dreams. You make over our yesterdays as you chisel and smooth our todays and tomorrows. A picture is a poem and so is a parlor-stove. The RISD museum is an anthology of verse. The great events of our portion of the hemisphere is there to be studied. George Washington and Santa Claus. Pan, Buddha, Christ, Mummies and Emperor Napoleon, most locally and nobly, Roger Williams, founder of freedom of faith and the start of Rhode Island. Everything under the sun and moon there, here, for us.

I am so proud and happy to be associated with you who are RISD. What luck! for four years, as for half a century, to learn from you, with your magical hands holding the wands of your talents, your genius. And your equally gifted wide eyes with which you take everything in. And transform it all with your kind hearts, the strong hearts of wizards and good-witches that bless what you see and hear.

You take the campus with you, wrapped up and curled into the diploma you carry away. We have many families in life. The ones we are born into. The clans we form. The classmates we embrace as brothers and sisters in the war on mediocrity, and the guilds we adopt and are adopted by with hoops of steel.

Another aspect of "poetry," by which I mean "art," is its traditional alliance with "nature." By which I refer to the impoverished wilderness we intrude upon as a species, the topic of our time. Yet as artists we are pagans, rediscovering the power, the taboo, and the sacred untouchability of the arts and designs that pre-date even the College Building. The shape of things that were. The birds and the beasts and the weeds and the trees. The clouds and the stars above that live on in our tapestries and textiles, our illustrations and our metaphors. Not to mention the models in our Nature Lab. They all require and depend upon our endless and loyal protection and appreciation.

In the words of the ancient radio farewell, "thanks for the memories." Here's a fancy toast in top champagne, fine bourbon, and high class beer, in the proper historical spirit of the tavern and wayside inn that was once the College Building. I faithfully keep the tokens and the tabs in my "office" till we meet again.

A note from the President

a note to the senior class from Roger Mandle, President

“YOU SAY GOODBYE AND I SAY HELLO,” goes the Beatles’ song. And so do I – as you graduate this year and bid farewell to RISD, I say hello (again) but this time to you as an alumna/us of our great school. In our “new” relationship, I hope that you’ll say hello! We’ll never say goodbye. Only “hasta la vista” – till we see each other again.

As an alum of RISD, you’re among a privileged group, who have made it through your rigorous time at our school and who are prepared in many obvious (and not so obvious) ways for your experiences ahead. You’re also joining an incredible network of people across the globe that are here (and there) to help you – connect with them, and stay in touch with us.

And as we offer to help you, in return, we ask that you help each other and us. How? By maintaining and expanding that network of knowledge, energy and creativity to help each other, and to make the world a better place. Simply put, you’ve now got a responsibility to give back – to your parents, to your chosen field, to your community, and yes, to RISD too!

It is time to think about the larger issues of life as well, and how you’ll make a difference. Time to think in Brian Eno’s term, about the “long now” and to join many who are hoping to change the world’s perception from imminence to eminence. I wish you good luck!
