TO THE CLASS OF 1948

In all the past historic years since the founding of this School no class has faced such opportunities as the Class of 1948. At no time in the history of the School has a class seen and benefited by the educational opportunities which have been yours. In every department you have had at your disposal better facilities, better instructors to guide and advise you. Your classmates have come from a wider geographic range, and with us all, you have shared a better Library and a better Museum.

All of this has been yours, at your request, as it were, for you chose to come to this institution.

All that has been yours has been given gladly but not without sacrifice. It has cost time and it has cost money. For this many of you are indebted to your national or state government, many others to your parents. All of you have shared the opportunity because of the enlightened founders and many friends whose unlimited generosity has given our nation this great School.

Today in this still unsettled world, there is a call for leadership from all quarters. We believe that you are prepared to take your place. You will do so for you have a service to render. In this you have no choice, for you have a moral obligation to self, family, School and nation to make the most of the opportunity which has been yours. The world needs men and women with vision and courage. We look to you to give your share.

TO THE CLASS OF 1948

I have been asked to write a message of farewell to the graduation Class of 1948. This is, of course, an impossible assignment for when you receive a degree it does not mean that your connection with the School of Design is severed. The School has become a part of you and you a part of the School. A marriage has been consummated, a marriage where-in divorce is inconceivable. A bond has been established, a bond of the spirit best described and understood in name to which this Institution is dedicated—Design, the miraculous talisman which we all share.

It would be foolhardy to predict that after graduation countless, munificent opportunities will suddenly be available for your selection. The realist knows all too well that the world is restless and wary. Today opportunities must be made and not found, but is not creation the prime attribute of all designers?

The harried world has perhaps never been in more desperate need of those, who like you, now possess the power to create and to build rather than to destroy. Our destiny is to join and not to separate—to serve together by evoking that mutual magic—Design.

Albert Simonson

DEDICATION

A beginning — four years of work — a degree.
But most important of all, this book proclaims that we have made a happy start on the work we most want to do. With sincere gratitude, we dedicate this record to every one of the many instructors who have helped us.

So now we are alumni; and it has all happened too fast. Why, it seems we were just having our Freshman convocation . . . all one hundred and thirty-five of us, all green, and nearly all females. Now graduation sees us leaving, some perhaps a bit wiser, and an increase of about forty or fifty men.

Our school has given us many memories. We can never forget it; its implanted teachings are in our minds and hands. Aside from that, we have been fortunate in being the class to enter with signs of expansion and have been on hand to watch it grow.

As always we have our remembrances. There was the usual initiation torment, "Worm Week," the boys (so few) with pants rolled to the knees; the girls (pride stripped) with curlers and Jolson mouths. The '48 Ball closed the nine day session and brought normality back.

With sixty veterans added to the class, Sophomore year things began to happen. A school song was written, clubs were revived, the farm was put to use, dances became frequent—ours being The Spring Frolic at Churchill House, complete with crowned queen.

By the time our third year crept up on us more activity arrived. The Ski Club went into action, as did the R.I.S.D. Theater, and the Athletic Association. Our Lower Slobovia Brawl, Lil' Abner style, was a successful innovation. All told, there was never a dull moment or week-end—either a carnival, play, dance, or movie was to be seen—t'was fun.

And that last year with its class get-togethers, theses, the veil before the degree and the iron hand to keep all at work on those last spring days. The Senior Ball which gave every Senior a "guest-of-honor" feeling, it was hectic but no one would trade any part of it for all the world.

Yes, we left wearing our new class rings on hands that tightly clutched a valued piece of white parchment. We felt smug and superior in our caps and gowns, and, once again, green and terrified as we looked forward.

The Division of Fine Arts is that part of Rhode Island School of Design which is operated to carry out specifically that provision in its Charter, designated as the second purpose, which reads — "The systematic training of students in the practice of art in order that they may understand its principles, give instruction to others, and become artists."

To accomplish these ends, the faculty of The Division of Fine Arts has devised a three part program which aims: — 1. To convey a body of knowledge, both historical and technical, relating to the student's field of concentration in Art. 2. To develop skills and critical judgement. 3. And above all, to sharpen the student's sensibilities, upon which depends the power to see and to feel those qualities and relationships, which are the basis of distinguished work in Creative Art.

The validity of any educational and training program is measured by its ultimate usefulness to the participant, in helping him to discover his personal bent and in preparing him to understand and to work effectively in the contemporary idiom. The Institution and Faculty are responsible for the program, but to achieve the desired results a dual responsibility is involved. The individual student must never lose sight of the fact that he shares with the faculty responsibility for his own development.

To the Class of 1948:

You came to us four years ago full of hopes and aspirations. You thought everything that was wrong with the world would be settled by 1948 . . . but you felt that if it wasn't quite settled then that you would do it yourselves. Anyway you thought the world would be your oyster.

1948 is here. You are graduating now. We share with you the realization that all is not well in the social and economic aspects of life here and abroad.

But the world is still yours. Your contribution to the social and economic health of our way of life cannot help but be significant.

The creative artist can be a tonic to a tired world.

To you, who are leaving the Division of Product Development:

Do your jobs confidently, knowing that by so doing you are helping many others to reach economic security.

Do your jobs humbly, knowing that the experience of generations is expecting your cooperation.

Do your jobs sincerely, knowing that only through sincerity can we eliminate the tasteless froth that is frequently inflicted upon us by the careless.

Have patience, because only through patient persistence will you reach your goal.

The Planning Department has attempted to give you a basic training upon which you can build your future professional life. One "raison d'être" of a design school is to provide students the opportunity for developing their imagination. Thus, in this department the curriculum has been arranged primarily to allow the student's creative ability to expand and develop in design. We believe that this policy in instruction cannot be overemphasized as it is the core upon which all lasting design depends. Practical problems have been dealt with only in so far as they could be understood by the student. The aims of the department throughout your complete course of study have been to provide a means to developing proper thinking processes which will be to your greatest advantage after leaving school.

Class of 1948 Greetings!

Now that you are about to depart from the halls of your Alma Mater and cross the threshold of opportunity, do not be disillusioned.

During your years at the Rhode Island School of Design, you have been well exposed to current subject material. Some of it, I dare say, with even the "New Look".

You will leave school with your degree in your hands and confidence in your heart, but it is not as simple as that.

You are going to start out into a practical, highly mechanized, industrial world. You will be met by severe competition in your field of endeavor. You must be just a little better than the best. You must be conscientious of purpose and sincere in your endeavor, give full measure to your effort, and retain your faith in your fellow man, in yourself, and in God.

My sincere best wishes for your success.

To the graduates of the Art Education Department,

Congratulations on the successful achievement of this most important of all commencements. It is most important because it is all the word implies; a commencement or beginning of an entirely new phase of life. The long, successive years as a student in the classroom are over—they belong to childhood and adolescence. They built the groundwork for this important day when each of you will go forth in the world, a full fledged adult, ready to take your place as a leader, rather than a follower.

The career in which you have chosen to become a leader is one of the finest of all professions. If you give it your best efforts, it will repay you tenfold in satisfaction. The rules, simple rules, integral with all good teachers are: an open mind, a sympathetic and intelligent understanding, and a forgetting of self.

We, your teachers shall miss you from our classrooms. Our interest and good wishes will always be with you. The doors of our beloved school which have been open to you as students will always be open to welcome you. The Alumni Association, yours and mine, is our common meeting ground of the future. There we shall come together as friends and colleagues.

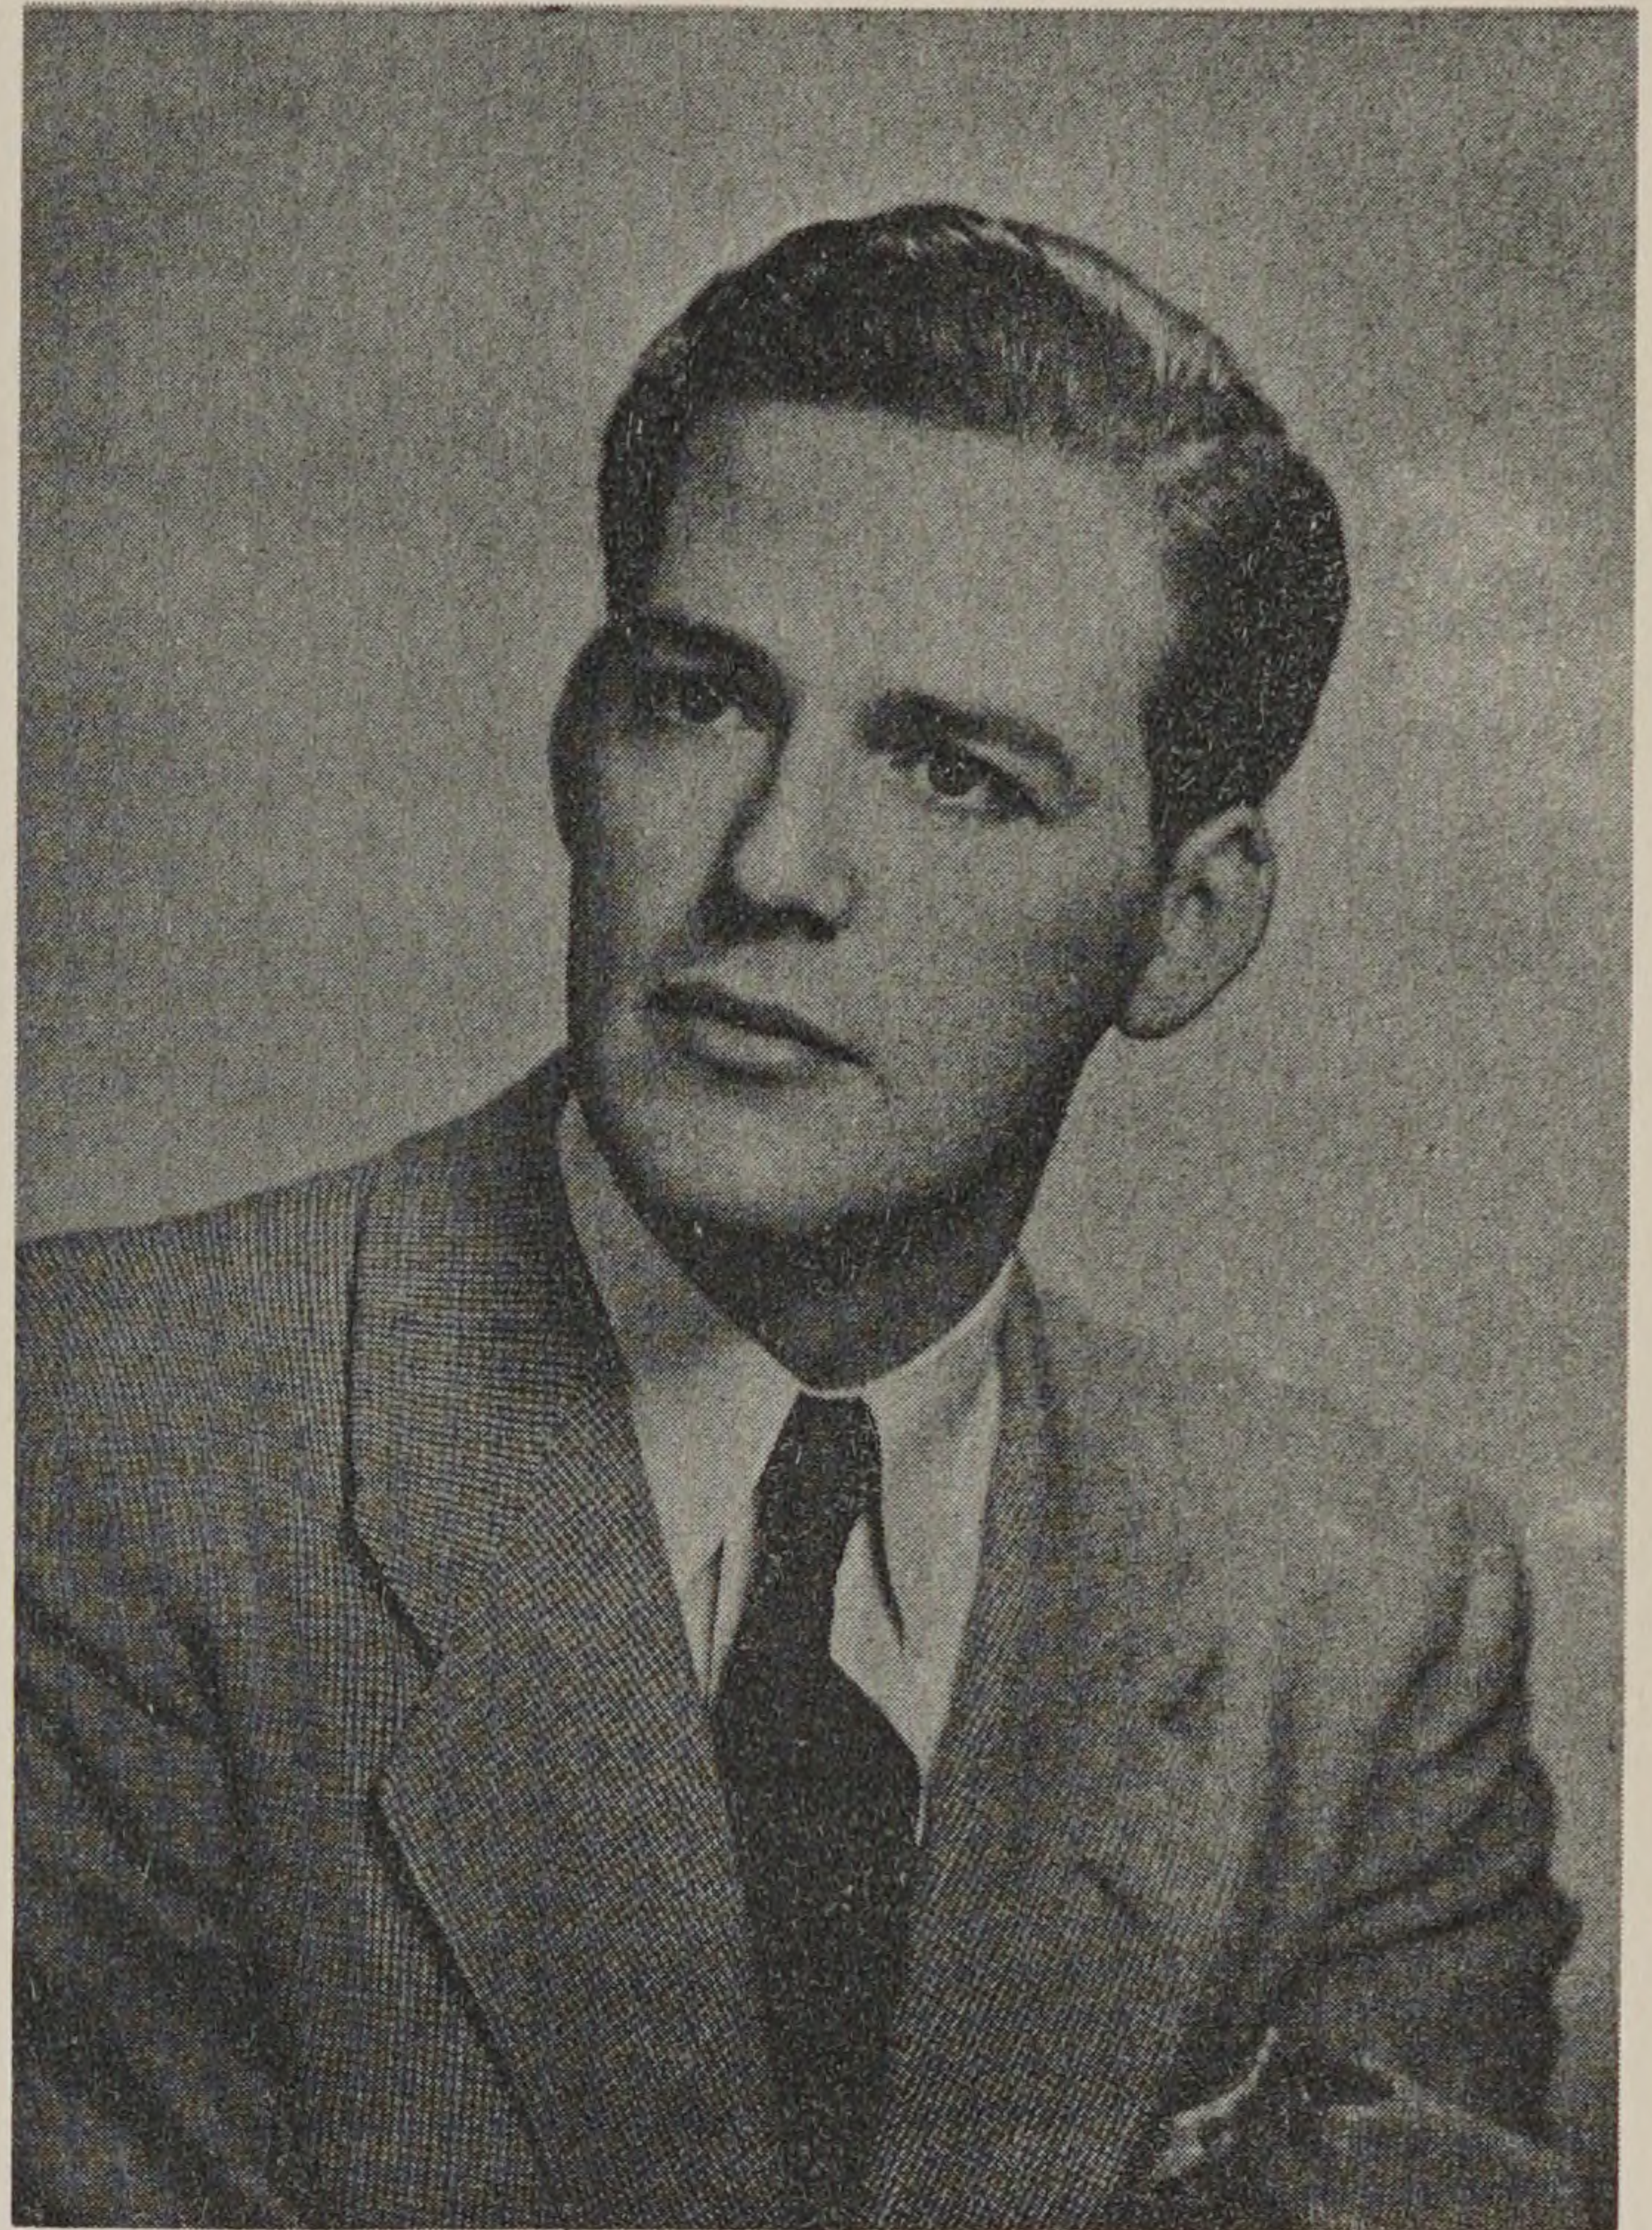

Farewell to you, our students of yesteryear. Greetings and good luck, Colleagues!

This Division of the School is unusual in its educational objectives. It offers major courses in the textile and clothing fields using the facilities of the entire institution.

The courses are integrated so that the creative ability of the costume designer reflects the art of the textile designer, the science of the chemist and colorist and the manufacturing technique of the engineer.

As students you have had the privilege of using all of these facilities and in addition, have had the broader view of textiles of other countries and of other times, a contribution made possible by the Museum collection of some of the world's finest fabrics and by a library of historic and modern books. Your instruction has included work in both the natural and synthetic materials so that your basic knowledge should enable you to find greater opportunity in modern industry.

I hope that you, the Class of 1948, will be most successful.

"FROM BETWEEN TWO COVERS"

Hello There! Gosh, have I taken a beating! Talk about having art stuffed into you—well, I've had my share. I don't like to complain, so maybe I'd just better tell you about myself.

Now, I'm not who you think I am, and I have no proper name, but do you remember that portfolio down in the Book Store back in '45, the one that looked so beautiful, the one you bought? Well that's my brother—now aren't you ashamed of the way you've treated it?

How very well I remember the Freshman year! It was torture, continuous torture. Yes sir, I had to hold plaster dust, clay, graphite, "T" squares, aside from the usual paper, pencils, books and lunch. Another thing, remember those sketching trips around town? Well, I do too! and I have the bruises to prove it. I also suffered through weeks of club meetings and class meetings, where I served, not only as a desk, but as a seat as well, and I suffered through it all without complaint.

Well, now listen, you haven't heard the end of my story! Sophomore year was even worse! I was pushed and shoved into those little lockers. And another thing, just because there aren't many tables in the College Building, where do you suppose I spent most of my time? Right! On the floor! I got my first taste of the fine arts sophomore year, too. I ate oil paint until some kind soul took pity on me and poured turpentine all over me—I ask you, which is worse?

The only thing I can say for the Juniors is that their work is improving! Aside from that fact though, they're all a bunch of social butterflies—plays, dances—you know, taking life easy now that they're Juniors.

Shucks, I'm only fooling, anyway! I've loved every minute of it, and I wouldn't have wanted it any other way. I'm looking forward to next year—to think I'll be able to carry that thesis (along with everything else no doubt) but I don't care, 'cause I guess I'm the luckiest portfolio that every was made. 'cause I guess I'm the luckiest portfolio that ever was made.

Generally acknowledged to be the most spectacular class that ever entered the School of Design—the freshmen of '46 (future graduates of '50) launched themselves in their sky rocketing careers with a relatively original and splendiferous shindig called the Masked Ball. The colossal success of the costumed event was outshone only by the carefree and gay 'je ne sais quoi'—and the unprecedented comaraderie and good fellowship of the fun loving Freshmen. All clubs and social activities have flourished with their initiations of the Frosh enthusiasts. Thus ended a year that brought forth a group whose talent is paralleled its humor.

This eminent student body entered the Sophomore year with more ambition than could be credited even to Caesar. Through the constant efforts of the class President, Fred Thrane, and his associates, class activities have been proven memorable events. The semester of '47 opened with the Harvest Brawl—to which many came without shoes or worries. Not much later the Sophomores sponsored a Children's Benefit Party through the profits made on the radio raffle. It has been debated ever since as to who enjoyed themselves most; the fifty children or the participating adults.

In the course of events, the traditional Masked Ball was revived. The dance was proof that the cafeteria can have the glamour of a Parisian café with its 'toujours gaie' crowd and sparkling entertainment.

And of course there are extra-curricular activities in which Sophomores have taken part—the up-and-coming basketball team, the Ski and Glee Clubs, the R.I.S.D. Theater, the Crystal Tap, the Jazz Concerts, and obviously others.

It has been an eventful year, due to the close cooperation of those who have worked hard, played hard, and have had an interest in class activities. Here's hoping that the next two years prove as memorable as those behind us.

INTRODUCTION TO R.I.S.D. FRESHMEN

What radio program is the average man most likely to be listening to at 10:15 on Thursday? Ask Mr. Hooper; he's taken a poll. Who would the average man vote for in the presidential election? Ask poll-takers, Dr. Gallup and Mr. Roper. In this age of statistics, every characteristic and opinion of the man on the street is sought out, analyzed, made into tables, graphs, charts, and diagrams.

We decided to take a poll of the freshman class to get a description of the average R.I.S.D. freshman. These results we offer to all interested with the hope that they will add considerably to man's scientific knowledge of the human race, with absolutely no guarantees.

A rather generalized picture of the average male freshman is something like this: He is 21, 5'11 1/2" tall, weighs about 155 lbs., has brown hair and eyes to match, is single, comes from a total of 16 states and is in favor of a compulsory military training program.

Armed with this description, we were on the lookout for the average freshman to get more vital information. The other day we spotted a guy in the corner of the library chewing on a T-square. He seemed to fit our description exactly. We immediately rushed over for an interview. "What are you reading, chum?", we asked.

"L'il Abner", he answered. "I also like Blondie and Terry and the Pirates." He turned to the sports page. "I like to watch football better than any other sport, but I also like basketball."

"Tell us more," we begged.

"Women, eating, and drinking are my chief extravagances," he said. "Especially women. I like girls who have a sense of humor and are capable . . . . . that's more important than looks and much more important than whether she is feminine or a good cook." he said, and started to read the funnies again.

"What would you do if you had 2000 bucks?", we said, determined to keep him going.

A calculating look came into his eyes. "I'd put it in the bank or invest it", he said. "If I had enough to buy a car, I'd get an expensive one like a Cadillac or a Buick."

"How about school?", we asked.

"I like drawing the best," he said. "I also like design and math, but English and projection drawing are a pain." At which point we took our leave.

The average freshman girl, our unbiased poll revealed, is 18 yrs. old, weighs 120 lbs., and 5'5" tall. She has brown hair, one blue eye and one brown eye, and if she smokes, she probably smokes Chesterfields. She comes from a total of 14 states and Canada and is in favor of having at least a brief career.

One of our colleagues watched the locker room for days in order to find the average female freshman. The following is his uncensored report:

"After several days of fruitless loitering, I finally spotted my girl," he wrote. "Hello girly", I said, trying to start a conversation. She had just opened her locker, and my greeting was drowned out by the clatter of supplies, knitting, pocketbook, etc. "How do you like school?" I asked, as we stooped to retrieve her junk.

"Swell," she replied. "I simply adore drawing and design. I like Gregory Peck, Vaughn Monroe, and Ingrid Bergman too, . . . don't you? Projection drawing, you can keep though," she went on without waiting for a reply. "It shouldn't happen to a dog! I like cocker spaniels, collies and German shepherds."

"What?!" I said, scribbling furiously in my notebook.

"Why, dogs of course," she continued. "I'd rather dance on a date than anything else . . . . especially with a fellow who is intelligent, has good manners and a sense of humor. I mean, I think that's more important than whether he's handsome or the life of the party. I don't like men or girls who are egotists, bored or indifferent or who talk too much," she went on. "I wish it were warm enough to swim. That's my favorite sport, but I'd rather watch football more than any other game."

"When would you like to get married?"

"Well certainly not until after I graduate, and probably not for a couple of years after that. I guess I'd rather marry a business man than an artist, and I'd like to have three children in my family."

By this time she had knit half a sweater which was obviously not my size, so, deciding there was nothing to gain by waiting to see her finish it, I said goodbye and departed.

The freshmen remember how the Student Council started their program for the year. There was the tea where they met their prospective instructors and became acquainted with other members of their class, as well as a few older and more experienced upperclassmen.

The Council spent a good deal of time arranging the budget for the money we all paid as our Student Association Fee. From this, allotments were voted to the yearbook, athletic association, student association office, and, from time to time, to the various organization and clubs as loans and grants. Our treasurer, Ken Tedford, kept his books right up-to-date, so that they could be inspected at any time.

Our first social event was the annual Christmas Dance, which, as usual, was a big success. The Council hired the Edgewood Yacht Club, and we danced to the music of the Designers under the able direction of Rene Villeneuve.

During the fall, the Council conducted the school's campaign of the Community Chest Drive. Then, too, the R.I.S.D. basketball team, bedecked in their new uniforms, entered the Southern New England Coastal Conference Basketball League. The Christmas Play, very ably produced, was supported by the Association.

In the Autumn, also, Maurice Morrisseau continued the job started by George Hanover, working on the school ring. We now have one with a permanent design which we all hope to have on our fingers by graduation.

Fred Thrane launched a campaign to persuade us to buy an amplifying system and "mike" for the cafeteria. It helps the vocalists at dances, and is certainly useful in bringing to our attention any late messages or ones we have overlooked on the bulletin boards. We also purchased coffee making equipment for the student lounge to be used during our club meetings.

Our big night, "Stars Over R.I.S.D.", brought everybody to the auditorium on February twentieth to behold our more talented members. Barbara Barry, now featured on Station WHIM, returned as our guest star and was as accomplished as ever. The money collected at this event was sent to the World Student Service Fund. As a matter of fact, Eloise Marzano, a member of the senior class, won the nationwide poster contest sponsored by this organization.

A major triumph was the reconditioning and refurnishing of the Student Lounge. Bill Simmons and his committee did the research on the furniture, the textile department designed and printed the drapes, and the lounge is now enjoyed by all.

All of a sudden it was time to forget activities and to remember exams, but we can look back on a varied and successful Student Council year.

Although only in its second year, the Athletic Association has become a very active organization. Arthur Williams, William Dalton, Nancy Dale, and Ann Starbuck were elected President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer respectively by members from the entire student body. They immediately started working on plans for the Harvest Brawl which opened the social calendar of events on October thirty-first.

Attention was then placed on the possibility of continuing intra-mural basketball and also forming a school team. Deciding in favor of both, the next step was to join the Southern New England Coastal Conference and to schedule as many games as possible with other colleges in this league. The game played against Bryant College in the Auditorium as a preliminary to the Rhode Island Steam Rollers is worth mentioning not only because of the support it received, but also because of the fighting spirit evident in the R.I.S.D. team. Congratulations to Mr. Burghoff for doing such a fine job as coach and faculty advisor.

Not to be outdone, the girl's organized a one night a week workout with emphasis on basketball. However, some of them did handle a mean badminton racket.

With Spring just around the corner, plans are already being made to continue intra-mural softball. There is also a possibility that Mrs. Fred Davis, who has so ably instructed the girls in basketball, will give some instruction in golf.

The Rhode Island School of Design Glee Club is actually less than two years old. During the war years, there was a Girl's Chorus. The school engaged a director, and the chorus was conducted as a sort of extra-curricular activity sponsored by the school. With the increasing number of veterans returning to school a need for a mixed chorus arose. In the winter of 1945 a group of eight men joined the chorus.

In September 1946, the Student Council, which was partly sponsoring the Chorus, suggested that a Glee Club be organized. This was done in November. Peter Ustas was elected president, Jerry Eramian vice-president, and Delores Io Rio secretary, and Miss Esther Bates, F. adv.

Starting with no background, no know-how, and only 25 members, the newly formed club had difficulty in surviving. The Club had no music library, less money, and no reputation. Despite everything, the Club managed an appearance in connection with the annual Christmas play, plus an evening concert and an assembly program, rounding out a year of disadvantages with success.

With the opening of the season 47-48, the chorus started to expand, and now numbers about 50 members. There is a new director, Mr. Hollis Grant. The Club makes no attempt to present the usual college glee club music. It is formed for the enjoyment of music by its members, and for the advancement of music in the school. The Club program is a broad-minded, cross-section of music, some serious, some middlin' classic, chorals, a few light pieces, Gershwin, and a sacred number or two. The Christmas performance of 1947 showed what the Glee Club could do, and served as a harbinger of future work.

The Glee Club of the R. I. S. D. was founded in the belief that an art school has a fundamental need for music. As an extra-curricular activity, the Glee Club should and will grow larger and stronger with the years, and build a reputation that will be worthy of a college of the arts.

Remember how grand Tamarack's crackling log fire seemed after skiing on Cannon Mountain all day long? That was the four day trip during mid-semester vacation when about thirty of us literally took over the lodge.

That good old rope tow at East Madison may not ascend a mountain, but it certainly was indispensable to us during Christmas vacation.

The club held its own, too, in competition with our neighbor, the Brown Ski Club, with the Rhode Island Ski Club, and in the invitation meet with Rutland Junior College. How many times we journeyed to the "precipitous slope" of Diamond Hill to sandwich in some extra skiing!

But Ski Club reminiscences evoke more than visions of ski trails and the sound of breathless "track". December fifth has become synonymous with the Ski Club Carnival. Remember Bert's barking for the Freak Show, the ghouls' moaning in the Horror House, and Fred's raffling of the posters? Oh, and the candied apples, the ingenious concessions, the fortune tellers, and the dancing.

Then we held regular meetings, too, when we thrilled to technicolor ski movies or heard lectures that acquainted the beginner with the terms of the "ski world". For the aim of the club is to provide instruction to the aspiring skier, as well as the opportunity, for the skilled, of skiing with his college friends.

However, when the spring thaws melt the snow, the club is planning picnics and other out-door organized sports. Under the leadership of Charles Keating, President, Irving Haynes, Vice-President, Beverlie Benson, Secretary, and Joan Rouslin, Treasurer, we feel that the '47-'48 season of the Ski Club has produced a vital feeling of active comradeship among its members.

Prior to 1930, dramatics at the School of Design was limited to pageants presented annually. These productions continued until 1941. In October, 1941 the Dramatic Club was started. From November 1941 to December 1942, a Museum Theater Project was sponsored jointly by the School and the Museum. They presented a program of one short play each month, designed to interest the public in the museum's exhibitions, and bear some relation in theme or setting to them. Sets and costumes were done by classes in drama and stage design. These classes were discontinued when the country went to war.

In February 1942, with Mr. Hathaway in charge of production, and Miss Bates as faculty adviser, the Dramatic club put together a student revue and two one-act plays, The Thrice-Promised Bride and Happy Journey. As a kind of apprenticeship to the Dramatic Club, a Christmas play has been given for the last five years, the last three ably directed by Mr. Wilfred Armstrong. The present Dramatic Club, renamed the Rhode Island School of Design Theater, was organized on its present basis in 1944 by a group of students interested in all phases of theatrical arts. The auditorium and its extensive equipment was made available to them, and the club was fortunate in procuring the services of its very able director, S. Morton Giles. Six varied and successful plays have been produced. Spring Dance, a light comedy, was the first, and the more serious drama, Outward Bound, was given the following spring. In the fall of 1946 the play which Sidney Howard adapted from the French, The Late Christopher Bean, was presented. In 1947, Wilde's The Importance of Being Ernest, and Agatha Christie's Ten Little Indians brought increased recognition and support. The Ascent of F-6 by Auden and Isherwood was presented in March 1948.

The organization offers many opportunities to the designer. There is great opportunity for building sets, for creating both character and mood through make-up and lighting, for practical experience in publicity campaigns to promote the plays, and last but not least, for acting. In addition to the congenial team work, is much fun at the club meetings, informal get-togethers, and occasional parties. Mr. Robert Hathaway, assisted by Mr. Frank Manera, supervises the designing and making of settings and properties.

By developing as professional an approach to its productions as time and talent permit, the R.I.S.D. Theater aims to provide not only an outlet for dramatic and scenic talent but also to promote an appreciation of contemporary and traditional theater.

"Time", we are told "marches on". There was Egypt, there was Greece, there was Rome. There was Homer, there was Chaucer, there was Shakespeare. Giotto painted murals in fourteenth century Florence; Titian, mythologies and altar-pieces in sixteenth century Venice. Rembrandt illustrated the Bible and painted portraits in seventeenth century Holland. There were 'classic' and 'romantic' authors. (Oh, Hell!) There was Gothic architecture and Renaissance architecture, and 'Colonial' architecture. And the craftsman and the writers of all these times and places made the circumstances of life, economically and sensuously and spiritually richer.

There are no more credits to be earned in English, Math, and History of Art? You breathe relief? Good-bye to Keats and Shelley? Good-bye to Raphael and Bernini? "Good-bye, Mr. Chippendale"? The king is dead! Long live the king! Hail to Frank Lloyd Wright and Henry Moore and Dorothy Liebes! Hail to Thomas Wolfe! To Auden and Isherwood! And to the graduating class of 1948 (with a draught of Ballantine or Pepsi-Cola or what-your-choice-is) Hail and Fare Well!
