Who Are We?

Jale Erzen
Middle East Technical University, erzen@metu.edu.tr

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.risd.edu/liberalarts_contempaesthetics

Part of the Aesthetics Commons

Recommended Citation
Erzen, Jale (2019) "Who Are We?" Contemporary Aesthetics (Journal Archive): Vol. 17 , Article 6. Available at: https://digitalcommons.risd.edu/liberalarts_contempaesthetics/vol17/iss1/6

This Short Note is brought to you for free and open access by the Liberal Arts Division at DigitalCommons@RISD. It has been accepted for inclusion in Contemporary Aesthetics (Journal Archive) by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@RISD. For more information, please contact mpompeli@risd.edu.
Who Are We?

Jale Erzen

Summary of Who Are We? by Wolfgang Welsch

Wolfgang Welsch’s new book of 166 pages, in German, traces the evolution of mankind and her relation to the earth throughout history. The undercurrent of the text is, in fact “how did we arrive here?” In other words, it is an implicit history of the development and a severe critique of ecological pathology.

As someone who has always looked at philosophy from the perspective of aesthetics and from the concrete examples of art and sensitivity to beauty, the main question that is posed by Wolfgang Welsch, both explicitly and implied in many of the chapters, is “Why do we need an aesthetics that is not anthropic?” The reasons are presented comprehensively with a perspective on history and taking issue with cognition, morality, and cultural identities.

In tracing an evolutionary anthropology, Wolfgang Welsch presents the cultural stance of postmodernism that hints at developments towards posthumanism. He gives examples of art that transcends human references, such as the light installations that create spatial orientations different from our relations to space. He also gives extracts from Apollinaire’s texts, Nietzsche, and art works of Dubuffet relating to cosmic images. We read here an anti­humanist discourse, in line with Foucault and Nietzsche, criticizing the humanistic closure created by Enlightenment discourse entitling humans to mistreat nature.

Jale Erzen
erzen@metu.edu.tr
Middle East Technical University
Published on April 11, 2019.

Cite this article: Jale Erzen, “Who Are We?,” Contemporary Aesthetics 17 (2019), accessed date.

Volume: SHORT NOTES, 17 (2019) | Author: Jale Erzen

All editorial content is the copyright property of Contemporary Aesthetics unless otherwise indicated. All rights are reserved, but downloading, copying in whole or in part, and distribution for scholarly or educational purposes are encouraged, providing full acknowledgement is made to Contemporary Aesthetics and to the authors of articles. © 2020 Contemporary Aesthetics
ISSN 1932-8478